THE CENTENARY CELEBRATION OF TORONTO UNIVERSITY

The Toronto Jewish Community extends felicitations to the University of Toronto on the occasion of its centenary celebration.

Notwithstanding the mutations which the Jewish character has gone through in recent years it is true that the Jewish people is still a book-loving and education-loving people.

Good literature and the better periodicals find a high percentage of readers in Jewish homes. And among the genuine students at the universities—those who toil in the laboratories and libraries because of a compelling love of learning for its own sake—the proportion of Jewish young people is gratifyingly large.

The University of Toronto is now one of the foremost institutions of learning on the continent. In some spheres of scholarship it has facilities and offers opportunities comparable with the best anywhere. What we sincerely admire and appreciate is the fine spirit of reasonableness and fairness which prevails in the local university. We well know that not only in backward European universities but also in many of the prominent institutes of higher learning in America there is lacking the true scientific attitude to life. Bigotry and prejudices are not uncommon phenomena in academic circles. Toronto University is one place of learning where the best traditions of academic freedom and intellectual catholicity obtain. Jewish students have always received equable treatment. And local institutions have ever found the most outstanding numbers of the faculty willing participants in their literary programs.

The local Jewish community entertains the kindliest feelings towards our great University and is happy to have this opportunity of giving them expression.

OUR JEWISH STUDENTS

With the opening of the University and the professional schools the question may again be posited to the large body of Jewish students: "Are you going to make an intelligent effort to understand the significance of the Jewish phase of your make-up?"

Students have opportunities for study and thought which other people engaged in economic pursuits have not. The question of the meaning of Jewism is one that must intrigue any thinking person, particularly the Jew himself. It is therefore most reasonable to expect the Jewish student to have the curiosity to find what the business of being a Jew means.

And we should like the Jewish student—perhaps we really are asking too much of what is after all only a bit of ordinary clay—to address himself to the task, free from any preconceptions and partizan commitments. We need a good deal of clear thinking in our American Jewish life. We are swamped with worn-out formulas and shibboleths. It is painful to have our students approach the problems of Jewish existence loaded with ready-made notions, unable or unwilling to figure out for themselves a logical organon of values.

Once there was a group of Jewish students who did some thinking on Jewish subjects—at Harvard. They created what they believed would be a useful instrument to help students in other universities

AN OPEN LETTER TO HIS WORSHIP MAYOR THOMAS FOSTER OF TORONTO

By RABBI FERDINAND M. ISSERMAN

Armistice Day is but a month away, and the whole world will pause for a while to express its appreciation to God for the end of the greatest conflict in history. It is fitting and proper that on that day communities honor the memories of those who left for the battlefields filled with lofty idealisms and laid down their lives for their country. Since the dedication of the Cenotaph the City of Toronto has commemorated its dead by a municipal service held in front of the City Hall. Such a service is most appropriate. In the past, however, this service has been of a sectarian nature, and has, I believe, been conducted by men of one particular religious group. In as much as representatives of all faiths, Jews and Mohammedans as well as men of the various Christian denominations fell fighting the battles of the Allies, and in as much as in Toronto the Cenotaph honors Protestant, Jewish and Catholic dead, if not also those of other beliefs, would it not be most beautiful if the municipal religious service held on Armistice Day be one in which men of all faiths could participate? Would it not be in harmony with the spirit of Armistice Day if a community interdenominational service be held on that day?

Not only would such a service be appropriate, but it would create an annual occasion when the whole community would temporarily relegate to the background the sectarian differences which too often divide and disrupt, and when all citizens would recognize the common bonds which bind all men. "Are we not all children of one Father and has not one God created us all?" Would not such an annual religious service in which the whole community could participate, and in which all citizens would unite in prayer together held on the day when the war for democracy was concluded be a glorious spiritual achievement?

May I suggest that you consider inaugurating such a service? I feel certain that the practical difficulties could easily be overcome.

WALT WHITMAN ON IMMIGRATION

Walt Whitman, America's greatest poet, was the first editor of the "Brooklyn Eagle." During the Nativist Movement in the United States, a movement which was the precursor in spirit of the modern Klan, Whitman wrote the appended article as a protest against the bigoted spirit which was prevalent and which aimed to shut America's doors to immigrants. His prophecies have been fulfilled. The immigrant has made America. All the Canadian has to do is to change a few geographical names, for the message of Whitman covers fully the present situation in Canada. Whitman's editorial follows:

"On the shores of Europe are panting multitudes, who sicken with nakedness and starvation. They weep—they curse life—they die. Partly through the excess of population, and partly through the grossly partial nature of the laws and the distribution of property, half the aggregate number of the natives of the Old World

While cleaning out a number of wells in Ronsperg, in Bohemia, the workmen discovered a well with a stone bearing a Hebrew inscription in which Israel Ba'al Shem-Tob, the founder of Hassidism, performed his ritual ablutions during the year 1744, bathing there even on the coldest days of winter. He bathed in the well 310 times. Pilgrimages to Ronsperb are being organized.

TURKISH JEWRY AGITATED OVER MURDER CASE

An unfortunate love affair, which led to the murder of an innocent Jewish girl and involved several representative Jews of Constantinople in a law suit, has been threatening to create anti-Semitic feeling and to bring on a complicated state of affairs which might have resulted most disastrously for the Jews of that country. The victim in this affair was a Jewish girl, Elsa Niego, about twenty years old, a typist employed by the National Insurance Company of Turkey. Miss Niego had for some time been persecuted by a certain Osman Bey, a middle-aged man, who has grown-up daughters. The girl later became engaged to a Jewish young man of her own station in life, and hoped that through that she would cease to be the object sought by Osman. The latter, however, apparently crazed by his love for the girl, found an opportunity to attack her and in his frenzy he killed her with a knife. All this was premeditated and well thought out and Osman Bey has been placed in custody on the charge of murder. The probabilities are that his defense will be insanity and he is now under medical observation, with that in view.

The murder aroused the Jewish population to a pitch of great excitement. The funeral of the girl served as an opportunity for a demonstration when ten Jews were placed under arrest on the ground that they resisted the police and shouted: "We want justice done." One of the ten, a young Jewish soldier, who was accused of wounding a Turkish passerby, was given a sentence of three months' incarceration. The other nine Jews were later acquitted by a jury, in spite of the efforts of the prosecuting attorney to make of the affair a racial matter and of implicating not only these nine Jews, but also Jewish organizations and the Jewish community as a whole. He made much capital out of the affair that the Turkish branch of the Bnai Brith spent a large sum of money for the funeral expenses of the girl and incited the riots that occurred at the time of the demonstration. It was in consequence of this allegation that the police later made a raid on the offices of the Bnai Brith, but found nothing incriminating there.

The Turkish press devoted much space to the matter and some of the papers sought to stir up racial hatreds in connection with it. The immediate consequences of the agitation were shown in anti-Jewish demonstrations in Smyrna, which urged the suppression by the Government of the Jewish schools, the Jewish newspapers and the Rabbinate, and demanded the expulsion from Turkey of all Jews who had not done military service. Boycott proclamations have been posted in many places calling on Turks to break off all business relations with the Jews. An order has been issued by the authorities, demanding Jews who wish to travel into the interior of Turkey provide themselves with special permits, such as are required of Greeks and Armenians.

The Turkish Ambassador at Vienna found it necessary to issue a statement, in which he denied the existence of anti-Semitism in Turkey. He hints that the reports were circulated by enemies of Turkey, perhaps by the Greeks, who endeavoured to exploit a simple police affair and make of it an interracial and international question. It is hoped that the court action, exonerating the arrested Jews, will allay the feelings of resentment and strife that irresponsible persons were trying to fan into antagonism among the various creeds and races in Turkey.

DEMAND FOR PROHIBITION OF SHECHITAH SPREADING

While the Norwegian Parliament defeated the bill that was before it for some time to prohibit Shechitah by a large majority, other European countries have begun an agitation for the prohibition of the Jewish mode of slaughtering animals for food. The Austrian Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is endeavouring to obtain the opinions of various districts on this point and in one province, Voralberg, ordering on Switzerland, the agitation has assumed definite form in a bill which is now under consideration. Although the number of Jews in that district is very small, it is from there that the Jews of Switzerland have been obtaining their kosher meat, since Shechitah has not been allowed in Switzerland for a number of years.

Similarly the German Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, at its annual conference recently held in Darmstadt, adopted a resolution demanding the prohibition of Shechitah. The Executive Committee was instructed to take steps with a view of making stunning compulsory throughout Germany. Protests against this resolution were voiced by Dr. Munk, of Berlin, and Dr. Horovitz, of Frankfurt, in which the Jewish point of view is clearly and definitely stated.

Editor, CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

Will you kindly allow me a few lines in which to express my gratitude to George Yavner, Arcadé Florist, for generous donations from himself and his children towards the aged and infirm of the Jewish Old Folks' Home.

We all realize what an advantage it is in moulding a child's character to interest him in doing what he can for the aged and helpless, and therefore I congratulate Mr. Yavner as a far-seeing parent, on his wisdom in training his children, Esther and Sydney, to think of an institution beneficial to the old and infirm.

Sincerely yours,
D. Brown

He also added that neither Dr. Szabad, nor Mr. Tsherikower, the other two mentioned, said anything to Mr. Steuer that could be construed in the manner in which he took it.

The town of Kotzk, near Lublin, famous as a seat of a dynasty of Hasidic Rabbis, suffered severe damage from a fire that destroyed about three-quarters of the town. Over 3,000 inhabitants, mostly Jews, were rendered homeless. Immediate relief was sent by the J. D. C. and by the Polish Jewish Committee, but the suffering is very great.

PRINCESS

"Rose-Marie," one of the most phenominally successful musical plays of recent years, returns to the Princess, October 10. "Rose-Marie" during its former engagement here was acclaimed as a smashing hit, a joyful entertainment. Rudolf Friml and Herbert Stothart have written a beautiful score for this musical piece. You may have heard "The Indian Love Call," "Rose-Marie" and other gems in this musical score over the radio or parlor records, but like all gems they need their setting to get their true and dazzling brilliance out of them. From the minute the musical director lifts his baton until the last note dies down there is a thrill and delight such as musical plays seldom have. The music you know so well is all there, sung with the same stirring effect as before and the colourful and unmatched Totem pole chorus with its weaving, falling, startling effect, the brilliant red costumes of the "Mounties", the grandeur of the Canadian Rockies, Indians, Miners, smart tourists, and the gorgeous costumes; all these things and more have made "Rose-Marie" the most successful musical play ever produced.

live in squalor, want and misery. Some seasons famine stalks through whole provinces and thousands are struck down ere the new moon fills her crescent. Then emaciated corpses strew the fields, and the groans of pale children are heard on the wayside, and savage murders are committed to get the means of life for dying women and infants. Amid the cities too (those great cities which many of our people would like to emulate in grandeur) Poverty stalks unchecked, dragging by the hand his brother, Crime. There is too much mankind and too little earth . . .

"And then look here at America. Stretching between the Allegheny Mountains and the Pacific Ocean are millions on millions of uncultivated acres of land—long, rolling prairies—interminable savannahs, where the fat earth is covered with grass reaching to a height unknown in our less prolific north—forests amid whose boughs nothing but silence reigns, and the birds are not shy through fear of human kind—rich openings by the side of rivers—trees and verdure making from year to year their heavy deposits on the remains of the trees and verdure that decayed before them. The mind becomes almost lost in tracing in imagination those hidden and boundless tracts of our territory—

> Where rolls the Oregon and hears no sound
> Save its own dashing.

We perhaps wonder what can be the intention of the Creator in leaving for so long a time such capacities for human existence and comfort undeveloped. We lose ourselves in the anticipation of what may be seen there in future times—the flourishing cities, the happy family homes, the stately edifices of public improvement, the sights and sounds of national prosperity.

"How, then, can any man with a heart in his breast begrudge the coming of Europe's needy ones, to the plentiful storehouse of the New World?"

A Letter from a Christian Divine

To cynics and pessimists concerning the ever-growing "Good-Will Movement" I offer the following paragraph from a letter addressed to me by an eminent Presbyterian minister:

"Mrs. —— sends best regards. She has always said you were more like us than our proud so-called flesh and blood. Did I ever tell you that when I had my wife in the hospital in Pittsburgh two years ago that we faced the possibility of blood transfusion? We did, and in testing to find blood that would be congenial to hers, it was discovered that my blood was of such hostile type to hers that it would have killed her if infused in her veins. The blood most congenial to hers was that of an intern, a boy, who had been in my clubs at the First Church, a Syrian, from the most uncredited division of the Semitic race. The only differences in race stock between me and my wife, for all the melting-pot within us, is zero. My Irish matches her Irish, my Teutonic forbears equal hers, our Scotch strains balance, our Norse elements cancel and our English fibre are of equal amount. Yet fundamentally we are father apart in blood than the product of the melting-pot and the Syrian. And out of this opposition comes three boys, the hope of the family, the nation and civilization!!! Q.E.D. If we are willing to think broadly intelligently, tolerantly, we shall be close as brothers; what is under the skin is negligible."

The world is moving, dear reader! With Longfellow we say:

"Out of the shadows of night
The world rolls into light;
It is daybreak everywhere."

WHAT'S WRONG?

What is wrong with organized Jewry in Montreal? Months ago the McGill University announced registration on September 27—which occurred on Rosh Hashonah. At the very last moment information in the Jewish press is given that Jewish students may register later providing a note from a Rabbi is brought to the Dean of the Faculty of Arts, to the effect that on account of religious considerations the applicant was unable to register on a fixed date. Why cannot organized Jewry present the Jewish schedule of holy days to the Faculty of the University a year in advance, as is done in many of the colleges in the United States? The schedule committee could then sympathetically arrange registration days that would not conflict with Rosh Hashonah. This business of bringing a "note from the Rabbi" is embarassing. And if the reports are correct, as a matter of fact, the majority of Jewish students did register on Rosh Hashonah. There is something wrong.

BETTER UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN JEW AND JEW

The other day a co-religionist visited our Temple for the first time in his life. "What! you have an Oron Kodosh—Torah and a prayer book in Hebrew and English! Why, I was always told you people are 'Goyim,'" said the Yiddish gentleman. "I'll from now on I want to come to Temple!" We Jews do know very little about each other, religiously speaking.

TSARIST EX-OFFICER KILLS JEWS IN CHINA

Much indignation has been aroused in the Jewish community of Harbin, China, by the murder of a well-known Harbin Jew, Mr. Vilensky, by a Tsarist ex-officer. Mr. Vilensky and a companion were waiting at the railway station at Khailar, in which town there is a colony of Tsarist refugees actively engaged in carrying on the anti-Jewish agitation of the Black Hundreds. One of them, named Rumkin, who was working on the railway, on hearing Vilensky speak in Yiddish, asked whether he and his companion were Jews, and on learning that they were, drew his knife and stabbed them. Vilensky died of his injuries and the other man is in a critical condition. After he was arrested by the Chinese authorities, Rumkin declared that he attacked the two men because they were Jews, although he did not know them and had nothing against them. He expressed the wish that he had time to kill more Jews. The Harbin Jewish Community decided to engage a lawyer advocate to prosecute the murderer Rumkin.

The Jugoslavian Minister of Justice, M. Subotic, speaking of the position of the Jews in Jugo-slavia in an interview, said that the Jews there enjoy full rights and unrestricted liberty of rights, not only on account of liberalism, but also because of their loyalty to the country.

People who knew Marcus Loew, the motion picture magnate, who died recently, say that in his bearing there was a complete absence of pompousness and arrogance so common to the self-made man. He was small, amiable, kindly and sympathetic, a large, generous mouth and twinkling eyes revealing his sense of fun and humour. In 1913, when he was unmistakably on his way to the top, Loew erected on the sight of his birthplace at Avenue B and Fifth Street, New York, a theatre costing $800,000 as a sort of memorial to his boyhood friends. It is said that he almost never discharged help because he thought that every man would find his proper place in his employ if given enough time. These things about Marcus Loew make it very surprising that his will contained no bequests to charity. By it his widow and sons inherit the bulk of an estate estimated at between thirty-five and fifty millions.

It is pleasant to consider Marcus Loew's career not only in view of his personality and ups and downs, but because it attests once more to the fact that romance in business is not dead. The boy who was born in 1870 of Austrian immigrants on the lower east side of New York became one of the country's famous newsboys. His folks were poor and were always helping newly-landed friends and relatives and he had to go to work at the age of nine to earn his way. He worked in a map printing house, on a newspaper as an errand boy, as a weaver, as a salesman, as a garment jobber and he was in the fur business back in the nineties with one Adolph Zukor, future head of the Famous Players-Lasky group. Later his son married Zukor's daughter. The road to wealth in the motion picture world was opened to Loew and Zukor when they bought an interest in a penny arcade in Cincinnati. At the time Marcus Loew died he was head of Loew's Pictures, Incorporated, "the most influential and powerful single figure in the cinema industry." As such he was a man of world-wide importance and power, his hundreds of theatres entertaining millions of people all over the world, the pictures he produced giving to millions all over the world most of the ideas they got of happenings in this country. Whether he used this power wisely and whether it is a good thing for one man to be able to say what millions get in the way of entertainment and ideas has been debated and questioned many times.

When death closed the book on one of the most romantic of the stories of adventurous east side Jewish boys, pall-bearers at the funeral of Marcus Loew were: David Warfield, Nicholas M. Schenck, Adolph Zukor, Lee Shubert, John Golden, Arthur Brisbane, David Bernstein, Joseph Michaels, Will Hays, Charles M. Schwab, Edward A. Schiller, E. F. Albee, Aaron Jones and J. Robert Rubin. Honorary pallbearers included Cecil B. DeMille, D. W. Griffith, Henry Chesterfield, Leopold Friedman, Sidney Kent, Felix Faust, Sam Katz, C. C. Moskowitz, Joseph R. Vogel, Maurice Blumenthal, Richard Rowland, J. J. Murdock, B. S. Moss, Edward Bowes, Irving Thalberg, A. L. Erlanger, Daniel Pomery, William Hamlin Childs, William C. Durant, William L. Phillips, William Braden, Messmore Kendall, Carl Laemmle, Sime Silverman, R. H. Cochran, William Fox, E. W. Hammons, Joseph P. Kennedy, J. Homer Platten, Albert Warner, G. M. Baynes, Charles H. Christie, J. J. McGurk, Samuel Spring, H. D. Buckley Courtland Smith, J. J. Schnitzer, Mark Hyman and Morris Kohn. Dr. Eiseman delivered the prayer at the grave in Hebrew.

Since the funeral Loew's will, made fifteen years ago, has been filed for probate and it was made known there were no bequests for charity. Of course this does not mean that Loew gave nothing to charity. Considering his character it is inconceivable that he did not and, considering his knowledge of poverty and his early life, it would be easier to believe that he gave often and bountifully, perhaps without publicity. It is all very well for a man to give anonymously or without publicity, but the experience of those who gather in the money for social and philanthropic causes shows that men give more when they know that others give and how much. Such being the case, it seems the duty of men to give at least some of their donations publicly and to remember the poor in their wills. In many federations of charity it is now the custom to ask people to remember these organizations in their wills. Although this is a fairly new custom it is a good one worthy of becoming common and old.

Is There a Jewish Problem in the United States?

A Searching Survey of Corporate and Individual Prejudice

By MICHARL B. SCHELER
(Reprinted from the Jewish Exponent)

The Jewish millionaires can be counted on the fingers of both hands, and the rest of the Jews who are industrious, make just enough to make ends meet. The great mass of Jewish workers, forever struggling between periods of employment and unemployment, just eke out a living. The majority of millionaires is found among the Gentiles. The industrial magnates, the powerful financial [illegible] wizards are all found among the Gentiles. A handful of Jews have reached the cateogory of millionaires but did one reach the billionaire category? The Jew does not yet keep company with such luminaries and yet the Jew is thought by the ignoramusses of the world to be the owner of all the capital of the nation, the money bags. Did I say ignoramuses only? How about Ford and his "civilized" clique? Fortunately he seems to have abandoned his decision about a Jewish conspiracy against the financial order of the world. Let us hope it is for long!

But supposing, for the sake of the argument, that the Jew does come one day in possession of all industries, it would not change the validity of my argument. We are not discussing in this article the right of control of certain industries. This right is the property of all those who have earned it and deserve it. What we are primarily interested in in this article is the opportunity for employment. What we chiefly wish to learn here is whether or not a certain nationality, in control of a number of industries, indispensable to the welfare of the nation, has the right by the nature of its control to deprive a large group of the community of the opportunity to earn its bread and butter honestly and conscientiously? Supposing the tables are reversed and the Jew is master of the situation, and he decides to hire Jews only, thus depriving the great Christian elements from earning a living? What would happen? The cry would be immediately raised: "The Jew is trying to dominate the world! The Jew is oppressing the Christian!" It will be therefore readily

KEREN HAYESOD REPORT TO ZIONIST CONGRESS

The head office of the Keren Hayesod with headquarters in Jerusalem, presented a report to the Fifteenth Zionist Congress which recently concluded its sessions in Basle. The report is a bulky document, covering the period of two years and giving a detailed analysis of the moneys collected and expended during that period. It is contained in a volume of 174 pages and contains a number of statistical tables and explanatory material. The directorate of the Keren Hayesod consisted of the following: Dr. Arnold Barth, Dr. Berthold Feiwel, Dr. George Halpern, Messrs. Solomon Kaplansky and Isaac A. Naiditch, and of the following three directors appointed as representatives of the American contributors: Emanuel Neumas, Morris Rothenberg and Harry L. Simmons. Dr. Feiwel acted as managing director, Leo Herrmann, as secretary of the board, A. Ulitsky as secretary of the finance department and Dr. Hans Kohn as secretary of the propaganda department. Following the resignation of Dr. Feiwel, Dr. A. Hantke and L. Jaffe were appointed to be managing directors.

The total amount received by the head office during the past two years was about $5,700,000, being an increase of 18.8 per cent. on the figure of the previous two years. It is pointed out that this is the net figure of the receipts, the cost of collection being in most cases deducted by the local offices before they transmitted the funds to the head office. The total sum collected by the Keren Hayesod during the six years of its existence approximates fifteen million dollars. The contributions in the United States during the past two years amounted to about three million dollars, or 53.8 per cent. of the total collections and represent an increase of about $150,000 on the collections during the preceding two years. It is interesting to note that while the collections in this country have increased, higher sums in other countries have brought a reduction in the percentage of subscriptions in the United States which at the time of the last report stood at 61 per cent. Next to the United States comes South Africa with a contribution of about $390,000 and the English contribution of South Africa stands at about $850,000 or about five dollars per head of the Jewish population. England comes next in the list of contributors, followed by Poland and Germany. Palestine Jews contributed during the period about $300,000.

The Keren Hayesod spent in Palestine for the regular budget and in the form of capital the sum of over five million dollars. The expenses of the Basle Congress were about $230,000, and of this sum the salaries of delegates about $200,000 constituted the expense about 6 per cent. of the collections. This, however, does not include the expenses connected with the collections in the various countries which is estimated to be about 10 per cent. of the total, so that the gross amount collected really amounted to about seven and a half million dollars. The report contains detailed figures which show the disposition of the moneys in Palestine, as well as the overhead

Please realize these changes

When it used to be cleaner, and easier on the clothes, to do family washings at home there was a reason for that form of drudgery. But—came a period of exhaustive research and a consequent general improvement in laundry methods; and to-day—better work is being done on family washings in laundries than was ever done in homes, and is being done actually more cheaply and with less wear and tear. This is a strong statement. Let us prove it to you. Phone

The Story of the Fall Shoes

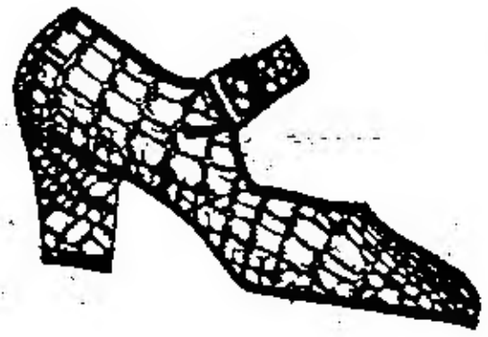
by G. E. Chambers

DESIGNER OF THE KNOX PACEMAKER AND REST-O-PEDIC SHOES

Chapter IV.—A WIDE ONE-STRAP AND A BUCKLE

This shoe has been designed for the woman who wants something entirely different from her last season's footwear—a shoe with a bit of exclusiveness about it.

It has an unusually wide strap that is very smart indeed—and holds the shoe to the foot as if it never meant to part.



It has a fancy buckle that furnishes a style touch of special effectiveness. And if you have been reading the Fashion journals, we need not tell you how strong the buckle is.

To further associate the shoe with smartest fashion, it has been made in alligator calf with stunning effect. Also in black gunmetal calf, patent leather, black suede, black suede with patent, and all-tan calf. Widths AAA to C. Priced at $11 and $12.

No doubt many out-of-town customers are interested in a shoe of such character . . . and we would like them to know that our mail service is at their disposal.

NOW—We're open all day Saturday until 10 p.m.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, minerals, water, power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return will give health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the soil, climate, farming and forest life, is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a title to these rich agricultural lands are also given.

Is ... a Jewish Problem?

se... that we are not protesting against Gentile control of industries. If the Gentile proves more resourceful, more original, more scientific and more qualified for certain functions and duties in society, he is entitled to all the advantages that ensue from such functions and duties. If the Gentile proves to be the superior administrator and executive, his is the right to own and operate whatever industry he comes into control of. This is not disputed. But the Jew should be given at least the same and equal opportunity to demonstrate his ability, to develop his potential faculties; in a word, to prove his best. If he fails, if he is incapable, if he is naturally inferior, nature and society will place him in his proper position. But is the Jew inferior? Has he proven himself deficient in his faculties and a failure at his tasks? History proves the contrary. His very survival against tremendous odds, despite all persecution and prosecution, speaks volubly for his ability, for his perseverance, for his resourcefulness and originality.

The facts of the matter are that the Jew is not in control of many industries, that he will forever play a negligible factor in the world's industries, that he will have to depend on the co-operation and fairness of his Christian neighbours for his well-being. He is therefore interested in a tolerant Christian society where prejudices against all religious and races are completely obliterated. I know of many friends who happen to be gifted with talents for chemical, engineering and mechanical research, but decided to pursue courses of training totally antithetic to their natural inclinations. Why? Because they did not think there was any opportunity for them, as Jews, in the industrial world. I know of many professional engineers, certified public accountants, chemists, etc., who were obliged to renounce their professions and turn to business ventures for source of personal incomes. Why? Because as Jews they were denied the opportunity of applying and developing their talents and education in the practical field. Whenever they applied for employment to large chemical plants, etc., the invariable reply was: "Sorry. We hire no Jews!" I know of a young man who spent almost nine years in the study of chemistry. He graduated from Cooper Union with a distinguished record. He spent two years in hunting a ... He looked too Jewish to deny his nationality, and the result was he had to spend another two years in the study of pharmacy, and to-day at last he enjoys the fruit of his "labour": he owns a drug store. From a chemist he turned to drug store proprietor. This is the fate of almost all Jewish chemists. . . . . Is such a state of affairs tolerable in a civilized community?

The Jew, as an American citizen, and as a human being is entitled to all the opportunities, to all the rights and privileges that his Gentile neighbours enjoy, and every discrimination applied against him or against any other nationality is contrary to the spirit of our institutions, and should not be countenanced.

Supposing this spirit of intolerance would infect our educational institutions under private control, such as universities, conservatories, commercial colleges, etc., and the principle enunciated by the stockholders and presidents of all public service corporations would be applied to applications seeking admission into those institutions—how many Jews could enter our professions then? Suppose one bright morning the presidents of our distinguished institutions of learning take a notion to extend the principle of intolerance to their doors and issue forth the following declaration: "Our institutions are privately owned, and therefore we have the inalienable right to admit only those students who, in our estimation, are fit and qualified to pursue our courses of studies." It will be evident that with such a strategy the presidents could bar any nationality that they might personally dislike, and naturally the Jew would be the main sufferer under such regulations.

Fortunately for the Jews, the professions are still open for them. The Jew has proven himself worthy of his privilege in the professions. The great number of scientists, distinguished medical practitioners, artists, musicians, etc., is a glory to his race and an immortal tribute to the American nation. The Jew has conclusively demonstrated his intellectual equality, and in some cases a positive superiority, to all other nationalities in every field of science and industry. But supposing our educators, wishing to imitate the policy of some of our financiers and capitalists, some day decide upon a plan of extending the right of private ownership plus discrimination to the admission of students and chiefly strike Jewish students—what chances would Jews have in our professions? It is evident to every intelligent reader that private control must have its limitations, that private ownership must not overstep and go beyond certain limitations. Some Jews will reply: This is a phantasy. The Americans are too liberal, too democratic to tolerate such an injustice, such a flagrant and brutal violation of elementary human rights! But is it not logical to state in reply that if the American can with equanimity look on at discrimination in the economic field, why should he not as coolly look upon discrimination in the educational field? If the American, the Christian American, of course, can support a condition which denies an individual to earn a living by the sweat of his brow just because he entertains religious beliefs different from his own, how much effort will it require to convert him to the justice of discrimination against the Jews in the educational field? And did we not hear of rumours of such discrimination in some influential educational institutions? It does not take long for a spark to develop into a conflagration under favourable circumstances. It would not take long for a seemingly harmless racial antagonism to develop into a dangerous calamity, into a menace to society if unchecked in time. Race prejudice is a malignant disease that spreads like a cancerous growth if supplied with proper nourishing elements. The average Gentile does not love the Jew much, and if he gets accustomed to the idea that the Jew may be morally and legally excluded from certain industries, what in his mind can prevent him from justifying the same injustice in the educational institutions? And once race prejudice reaches our seats of learning and infects the minds of our educators, how long would it take for the infection to spread even to governmental agencies? Pretty soon the Jew would find himself excluded, under the most innocent pretexts, from all important functions in the state and federal governments. Take the Negro in the South as an illustration. The Constitution of the United States guarantees him all the laws guarantee him all the privileges of a free citizen of the state. In the eyes of the law he is equal to the white man. But what are the facts? We know too well how the Constitution and the laws are violated in the South when Negroes are concerned. Give the anti-Semites their way and they will find ways and means to circumvent the Constitution and to violate all the sacred principles of humanity!

This article is not intended to sound an alarm of immediate danger. The menace we have been speaking of in this article is far off and can be nipped in the bud. Perhaps the intolerance we have pointed out is and will remain confined in certain industries and will never spread out into other channels. Perhaps it will not. The probabilities are, therefore, along both paths. It will therefore behoove the Jews and their spokesmen to be on the watch. We must pool our resources together and fight energetically the cancerous growth of race prejudice that is unmistakably visible and effective in certain strata of American society. We must not combat it as Jews, but as free citizens of democratic America. We must fight anti-Semitism and race prejudice in all forms as defenders of the American Constitution, as guardians of the sacred principles of our fathers and of our democratic institutions.

In conclusion I wish to outline what appears to me a rational course of procedure to be taken toward the complete extermination of all race hatred and discrimination from these United States:

1. Jews should take a more active part in political parties in particular and in politics in general. Jewish parents are apt to see a career only in the professions of medicine, pharmacy, dentistry, law. They try to convert our children into veritable profession maniacs, ignoring the fact that there are just as many glorious opportunities and honourable prizes in the political world. I would like to see a few more Jewish jurists, statesmen, congressmen, senators and diplomats and fewer doctors, dentists, etc. If the Jew wants to obtain full equality with the Christian, he cannot afford to leave the domain of politics all to the Christians.

2. As members of political parties the Jews should see to it that more members of their race are nominated and elected to important judicial, executive and legislative offices. We have an uneven proportion of Jewish congressmen and senators, assembly- and governors. A race of three million souls should have a fair representation of men and women in all state and federal institutions. The present quota is far below our normal proportion.

3. As American citizens we must and have a right to demand of our duly elected legislators to combat and take drastic steps against all manifestations of anti-Jewish intolerance and discrimination. We must demand of our public officials to counteract this disease within and without the legislative assemblies.

4. English Jewish periodicals should investigate and expose all manifestations of prejudice and discrimination, and publish the names of the perpetrators regardless of how important and famous those personages may be. Let the Jews and the Gentiles know that we know who are our friends and who are our foes.

The English periodicals devoted to Jewish interests must place themselves in the front ranks of all liberal movements and continuously enlighten the public to the fallacies and dangers of race discrimination. They must also make our politicians, legislators and political bosses understand that the Jewish vote cannot be bartered for any price and that our support will be given only to those who are sincere and courageous advocates of American principles of fair play and religious tolerance. Our public officials should learn once for all that we are not satisfied merely with their lip service at our formal events and celebrations, but that we would expect them to fight the spirit and the evil of race hatred actively and persistently under all occasions.

The United States is a glorious country. It has a wonderful, a humanitarian constitution. American political institutions are models of the democratic spirit of fair play. Are we to turn them over to a band of fanatics and reactionaries who will disfigure their physiognomy and eventually crush the soul out of them?

"We are all created free and equal," is the spirit and foundation of all our political, educational, judicial and religious institutions, but as long as there remains a Jewish problem the spirit of our institutions is not observed. In pre-Civil War days the air was filled with a gross injustice; every liberal man and woman felt that the Constitution was violated in a great section of the country; the slavery of the Negro made a sham of all our protestations of liberty and equality. And until the Negro problem was settled, liberal opin- to the ethical [illegible] of all our free institutions. At the present time the existence of a Jewish problem, the wide-spread agitation of the barbarous and un-American organization, the Ku Klux Klan, the too-frequent manifestations of opposition to science and religious tolerance arouse again painful feelings of doubts in the great minds of the world as to the efficacy of our institutions and as to the sincerity of our humanitarian proclamations.

"And to remove such doubts the American nation must have a house-cleaning. The American people must wake up to realize that the real enemies of our Constitution are not the communists, the socialists, the liberals of all shades, the Moscow Bolsheviks, but the respectable and honoured 100-per-cent. patriots who, under the flag of America, preach race hatred, strife and intolerance, and thus endanger the security of our institutions.

"I am afraid that the teaching of tolerance in our elementary and advanced public schools is too platonic, too one-sided. It is becoming almost as stereotyped as the teaching of the Bible. The hearts and the souls of the pupils are not reached. The American Government must adopt more stringent methods in its campaign against intolerance. Our educators in all public institutions supported by the taxes of the people must preach tolerance energetically and continuously. It should be instilled in the very make-up and fibre of our youth. We should put more enthusiasm in our sermons on tolerance. By thus educating the youth and the new generations of the dangers of all racial hatred and discrimination, we may hope to exterminate the bacilli of intolerance and save our institutions.

"If we are a free and liberty-loving nation let us show it not only in our public documents but in deeds. If our institutions are truly democratic, let us convince the thinking world that we practice what we preach.
